"We are investing in these sidewalks and this traffic light on Refugee Rd in hopes that another family will not experience the pain that the Carmichael family did, with the tragic loss of their mother," said Mayor Coleman. We will continue to invest in sidewalks across Columbus to make other streets safer for families on arterial streets with heavy traffic and near schools, said Coleman.

According to Councilmember Craig,, chair of Health, Housing, and Human Services Committee, sidewalks help create safe and walkable neighborhoods. Sidewalks add value to homes and promote healthy lifestyles. "As a city, we need to continue to make these investments to improve the quality of life in Columbus," said Councilmember Craig.
